

Resources:

Native Land Digital

Indigenous territorial history is often incompatible with the rigidity of colonizers' mapping practices and understandings of land borders. This evolving interactive map seeks to more accurately identify the tribal nations, Native languages, and treaties tied to land across the world.

History of Fishweir

Explore the history of Massachusetts and Wampanoag fish trapping in the tidal flats of the Quinobequin and discover ongoing community programming with current tribal members surrounding the practice.

Native Land Conservancy

The Native Land Conservancy is a Native-run land conservation group based out of Cape Cod committed to maintaining New England's woodlands, coastlines, and waterways through traditional Indigenous cultural knowledge and practices.

Indigenous Environmental Network

The Indigenous Environmental Network works to address environmental justice issues by building the capacity of Indigenous communities and tribal governments to develop mechanisms to protect their sacred sites, natural resources, and health of their people.
